

Social Websites

Bridgford Wealth Advisory LLC (“Bridgford”) may utilize third-party websites, including social media websites, blogs and other interactive content. Bridgford considers all interactions with clients, prospective clients and the general public on these sites to be advertisements under the securities regulations. As such, Bridgford generally retains copies of information that Bridgford or third-parties may contribute to such sites. This information is subject to review and inspection by the CCO of Bridgford or the securities regulators.

Information provided on these sites is for informational and/or educational purposes only and is not, in any way, to be considered investment advice nor a recommendation of any investment product. Advice may only be provided by Bridgford’s advisory persons after entering into an advisory agreement and provided Bridgford with all requested background and account information.
